Engage with the Bible in 2011

INTRODUCTION

by Jonathan Edwards - BUGB General Secretary

BIBLE - REFRESHING OR BORING?

The Bible has an awkward reputation. Everyone knows that it is the most famous and most widely distributed book in history. But at the same time the Bible is unknown and unread by the overwhelming majority of people. If people know about the Bible at all the assumption is made that it is boring and irrelevant.

2011 marks the 400th anniversary of the publication of the Authorized Version of the Bible. This gives us a splendid opportunity to put the Bible centre stage. Anybody who takes the time to read the Bible will find it compelling reading. It lacks nothing. Whether you are looking for gripping historical stories about love, war and conquest; beautiful poetry; wise sayings or fine hymns you will not be disappointed. And amidst it all you will meet God - the God who made you and who wants to be at the centre of your life in this New Year.

This excellent edition of Baptist Life reflects our determination to live our lives in the light of the Bible. As you read these articles there will be many occasions when you will be forced to reflect that they are like a 21st Century continuation of the Biblical record ... stories of people living for God amidst a range of challenging circumstances. There is a particular focus on people whose ministries are being supported by a Home Mission Grant. Isn't it exciting to see what God is doing with the money that we have contributed to Home Mission?

The Bible introduces us to hundreds of women and men of faith. They often struggled and failed but they discovered that God was faithful and that as they lived in step with him, he was able to bless them. As we set out in this New Year I pray that we will resolve to walk along the same path of faith. The Biblical stories give us every reason to believe that the journey ahead will be testing and difficult, but they also remind us that God will be with us every step of the way.

Home Mission is a crucially important aspect of our life together as Baptists, and Home Mission is all about faith. Hundreds of people are supported through Home Mission grants, from people working in small village churches to those who minister in challenging city centres. From people serving in our 13 associations to the staff who work with me at Baptist House in Didcot. The hundreds of people supported by Home Mission are all part of the ongoing journey of faith.

I hope that 2011 will be a year in which the Bible comes alive for you in all sorts of ways as you continue your journey of faith.

Jonathan

In this feature we focus on churches or ministries that have received a BUGB Mission Grant from Home Mission. Everything we feature in Baptist Life benefits from Home Mission in some way. For more on Home Mission go to: www.baptist.org.uk/homemission

Building relationships

Blenheim Baptist Church in Leeds (Yorkshire Baptist Association) has the honour of being next to the best tall building in the world! In July 2009 the church moved into a new building, part of a complex which also has the Leeds Metropolitan University Faculty of Art, Environment and Technology that won a prestigious Best Tall Building in the World Award last October from the Chicago-based Council on Tall Buildings and Urban Habitat. Since their move the church have been developing a ministry to those at the university and have recently started a cafe to offer a quiet space for students and staff which is attracting a steady number of regular customers. The cafe has been partly financed by a BUGB Mission Project grant, something that minister David Humphries is very appreciative of. "We couldn't have opened the cafe of this high standard without the grant," he says.

Making People of Peace

In rural Breconshire (South Wales Baptist Association/Baptist Union of Wales) there are 20 Baptist churches, many of which have been established for centuries, that now only averages 8 members, nearly half no longer meet every Sunday and some of which Ifor Williams says are 'hanging by their fingernails'. Ifor and his wife Penny have felt called by God to work as missionaries in the area, by not only strengthening the local church but also starting mission from scratch, through seeking out 'people of peace' and making disciples. Ifor and Penny are receiving financial support both from the South Wales Baptist Association (BUGB Mission Grant) and the Baptist Union of Wales. Since starting in February 2010 Ifor and Penny have built good relationships with the established churches and are seeing signs that God is doing something new in the area. "You can't have resurrection without a death and I think that is what has been happening here," says Ifor.

Giving back to our roots

A Baptist church that had a vibrant tradition of planting churches is now getting support in its future mission by one of the churches it originally planted.

Sansome Walk Baptist Church (SWBC) in the centre of Worcester (Heart of England Baptist Association) is one of the oldest churches in the BUGB (established in 1658). It has planted five churches in its history including Redhill Baptist Church (in 1879) which is now St Peter's Baptist Church after moving to the St Peter's area of Worcester three years ago. In recent years St Peter's has been experiencing significant growth whilst its mother church SWBC has declined in numbers.

Two years ago Sansome Walk went through a review process where the leadership realised that they would have to make changes in how they did church if it was to survive and blossom again. Martin Hodson, minister of St Peter's, offered his help and talked with the Sansome Walk deacons about sending some people across from St Peter's to help develop a new vision for the church. Over several months a group from the church started to visit Sansome Walk and get involved. In October 2010 both churches came together for a service where 21 people plus children were commissioned to move from St Peter's to Sansome Walk to continue the project.

Frances Anderson and her husband Steve have moved from St Peter's to Sansome Walk. "With our children now adults, we were expecting God to have a new challenge for us, and God said this was the one to be involved in," says Frances.

"It's about six weeks since St Peter's people started going there more regularly. A new worship team is up and running, and is leading services. It feels different with more people in the church, there's a good atmosphere. We are all getting to know people – learning names and sitting with people we don't know. We have started to think about how what we do could impact the community. We are looking at appointing a new minister.

"We feel at home in a newly emerging church. Steve has experience at work of integrating organisations, and I have experience as a church leader. We are expecting God to do some really good things in this partnership, both at Sansome Walk and at St Peter's."

Christine Baker is a deacon at Sansome Walk and has been involved in the review process. "I am still amazed at what is happening, it's hard to believe this is Sansome Walk! Only just over a year ago our Sunday morning attendance was poor, we have a large building and there were so many empty pews, but now we have a sizeable congregation and over tea and coffee afterwards there is a real buzz.

"We are thrilled at how God has led us over the last year or so, but all of it has been underpinned by regular prayer meetings. As to the future, we aim to extend our outreach to the local community, to the people who live and work around the church in the heart of the city. Our vision is to see more people come to know Jesus as their Lord and Saviour."

WHO LET THE DADS OUT?!

Who Let The Dads Out? (WLTDO) toddler sessions are specifically for toddlers and their dads, stepdads, granddads and male carers. They follow the same traditional format as normal parent and toddler sessions but with a few masculine touches, such as taking place on Saturday mornings, bacon butties and sometimes newspapers. Lancaster Baptist Church's WLTDO (North Western Baptist Association) has been running since September 2010 with encouraging numbers so far according to the minister, Steven Hewitt. "The dads all seem to appreciate having a safe space to come where there are lots of toys, room to run about, good refreshments and a chance to meet other dads and share experiences. Taking inspiration from Malachi 4:6, WLTDO seeks to turn the hearts of fathers to their children and the hearts of children to their fathers. We hope that our WLTDO group will provide an opportunity for that to happen." <http://wholetthedadsout.org/>

MORE THAN GOLD PLANNED FOR THE LONDON OLYMPICS

We are just over 18 months away from the Olympics being held in London and excitement is growing. Many are preparing for the arrival of the games including the church. More than Gold is an ecumenical organisation set up to enable UK churches to engage with the 2012 Games by inspiring them to work together on sports and community initiatives and helping them connect with relevant agencies and resources to make it happen. Ian Bunce, Head of the BUGB Mission Department, believes that churches should take the opportunity that the Olympics will give to share with others the good news about Jesus. "The opportunities that churches will have to get involved in community events, social action and missional initiatives through the Olympics and More than Gold are immense. I commend it to every church."

LISTEN TO THE BAPTIST VOICE

Baptist Voice formerly known as Tapes for the Blind is a free monthly audio magazine produced by the Baptist Men's Movement as a ministry to those who are blind or have impaired vision. Available on tape cassette or CD it contains a selection of Baptist and Christian news articles from a range of sources including Baptist Life, The Baptist Times, Engage magazine from BMS World Mission and occasional contributions from guest speakers. Gilbert Payne and Geoff Pratt from Abingdon Baptist Church (Southern Counties Baptist Association) produce Baptist Voice. They say that the service has helped many who had stopped attending to reconnect to their churches. "It is very encouraging to think that there are many who are hearing God's message and news about the church they would not have been able to hear before." For more information call Baptist Voice on 01235 530080 or visit the website.

Prayer & Worship

2011: See the Bible afresh

This year it is 400 years since the King James Bible was first published. Biblefresh, an ecumenical body, is encouraging churches to mark the anniversary by engaging with the Bible in new ways. Here are four approaches used by Baptists to enhance your reading of the Bible in 2011 be it in your personal quiet time, in your home group or church. For more on Biblefresh go to www.biblefresh.com

Bible Messages for Today

The Mission Department invites you to use your own experiences of God to write a modern-day parable or psalm, and share it with the Baptist family. Selected contributions will be combined into a publication later in 2011. Go to www.baptist.org.uk/biblefresh for more information.

Bible reading notes

A guide for your Bible journey

Martin Hodson is minister of St Peter's Baptist Church in Worcester (Heart of England Baptist Association, see page 4). He has been writing Closer to God 88notes for Scripture Union for 12 years and is also a contributor to www.wordlive.org

"Bible reading notes give you a pattern for reading the Bible on a daily basis. They help Scripture to become part of the rhythm of your life and getting a 'Bible habit' is one of the essentials for Christian growth. Notes always point you back to the Bible passage, deepening your understanding, challenging you to read creatively and helping you to make the leap from then to now. There is a wide range of notes from several good publishers so if the first ones you try don't suit you, don't give up. And www.wordlive.org is massively popular as an online resource for daily reading."

Lectio Divina

Meditating on the Word,
word by word

Gert Glasius is minister of Loughborough Baptist Church in Leicestershire (East Midland Baptist Association). For more on Lectio Divina visit his website

www.lectiodivina.co.uk/

“Some years ago I came across Lectio Divina (LD), a very ancient way of interacting with the scriptures. It involves a slow and prayerful reading of the Bible, paying close attention to every word and sentence, image and thought expressed.

I have found this way of reading the Scriptures deepening my own private devotions, most days end up with a phrase from the Bible ‘bouncing round my head’ during the day. I have also used Lectio Divina with groups of Christians and those who are searching but don’t attend church, and found both groups expressing appreciation. I repeatedly heard the phrase ‘it is as if a light went on’ when I encouraged a group of spiritual searchers to do a LD exercise with Psalm 23.”

Learning the word

Biblical storytelling

Kathryn Bracewell is minister of New Life Baptist Church in Oxford (Southern Counties Baptist Association). See more about the church on the BUGB YouTube channel www.youtube.com/bugbbms

“Biblical story-telling is all about learning the Bible passage off-by-heart, in order to tell it (without a script) during a corporate act of worship. I’ve been doing this for about 12 years now. It’s hard work: preparation for a Sunday service starts early on in the week, and many repetitions are needed throughout. My love of the Bible has developed, as has my insight into its world. This is invaluable when it comes to sermon preparation, and there just seems to be much greater opportunity for me and the congregation to hear the Bible’s resonance in our own daily lives.”

The Daily Office

Celtic daily prayer

Trevor Miller is a Baptist minister and Abbot of the Northumbria Community (Northern Baptist Association). For more on Celtic Daily Prayer go to www.northumbriacommunity.org/pray-the-daily-office “Celtic Daily Prayer is the Northumbria Community’s Office Book. Translated now into five languages it is used by many Baptists.

The use of a Daily Office provides a discipline and rhythm to life for individuals and a community. It provides an easy and attainable framework for seeking God, praying and engaging with the Bible. Both morning and evening Offices include short readings from the Psalms, the Old and New Testaments.

In the context of prayerful reflection we intentionally bring our lives before God and open the Scriptures with an attentiveness that is more about the transformation of the heart than the accumulation of information. Faith comes by hearing and is deepened through the regular practice of waiting upon God, alone and together, reading Scripture and allowing it to shape and direct our lives.”

For over 10 years now the Baptist Union of Great Britain (BUGB) have followed Five Core Values, declarations about the sort of Christ-centred people we ought to be. The Opinion section of Baptist Life will look at these core values over the next five issues. First up, Roy Searle focuses on what it means to be a prophetic community.

PROPHETIC

Roy Searle, co-founder of the Northumbria Community and a former President of the BUGB

Being radical, non conformist, apostolic and prophetic should characterise our lives as Baptist missional disciples. As a movement we have refused to be conformed by the values and practices of both church and society where we believe they don't reflect the ways of God.

To follow Jesus, take him at his word and live out the gospel in our daily lives will propel us into thinking differently about how we live. It will lead us to make a difference and contribution to human life and society. It will also inevitably arouse some suspicion and opposition as the values of our faith clash with the accepted ways of society.

Our history as Baptists reminds us that we have been involved in issues like the abolition of slavery, the Civil Rights movement, affirming the contribution of women in the life of the church, standing out against unjust wars and encouraging pacifism.

As we journey further into the 21st century, we have to be able to evaluate and stand against the dominance of materialism where it damages individuals, society and the environment – this is part of our prophetic calling. In the face of huge social and economic change, we must avoid retreating into a religious backwater and resorting to a fundamentalism that is rooted in fear and insecurity. This will lead us to resisting healthy change instead of living out the gospel positively and embracing its prophetic calling.

To embrace our prophetic calling demands that we ask how we should live in a manner that reflects God and his ways. Our lifestyles need to echo good news for the poor, speaking out for those whose voice is rarely heard, defending and protecting those on the margins; working for justice at home and abroad, expressing compassion, living more simply and generously, caring for the environment, welcoming the stranger, building community in a culture of individualism, valuing people even when they aren't a celebrity; being prepared to speak out against war and the use of violence and intimidation; denouncing the folly, greed and power of the financial institutions, big business and Government where they no longer serve society.

Do we respond to such issues prophetically or pathetically and are we ready for the cost and challenges that come with following Christ? If we are known as Baptists for our conformity to the gospel and our non-conformity to many of the accepted norms and practices of contemporary society, we might truly contribute to lives being transformed, and bring some hope and a future to the world.

Dulcea's Diary

Entry Number 501

Dear Diary

What do you think of my new boots? Picked them up in the January sales. What a scrum down though. Never seen anything like it. I just hope that lady's toe heals. I know I shouldn't have but this rage completely takes over when I see a bargain. So tonight I'm going to wear the spoils of my battle in Russell and Bromley to Bible study tonight. Pastor Steve wants to do things a bit differently this year. He says we need to be more 'contextual'. I'm not sure what that means exactly but loosely translated we won't be doing Bible study in the church tonight. Instead we're off to Costalotforacoffee in the High Street. They've started holding a monthly open Bible study and discussion meeting in the upstairs lounge. They call it Cappuccino & Christ and apparently all sorts of people attend who don't go to church but are a bit interested in knowing more about the Lord. Sister Beryl's not happy though. I'm not saying she's grumpy but she could have been cast as one of the seven dwarves. She says Pastor Steve is always coming up with these new-fangled ideas and that if people want a hot drink with their Bible study they can stick the kettle on in their own homes. You can't be having the Lord and a Latte at the same time, she says. I guess she won't be attending then. But you know what, Diary, I made a new year's resolution to be a bit more open to Pastor Steve's innovations. It's not been easy and he's always challenging us to go further with Christ. So I'm going to go tonight. You never know I meet might a handsome young man over a hot espresso. These boots were certainly made for walking!

Prayer Guide

Adoration and Praise

Glory to you, Jesus Christ!

You met us as a refugee, a threatened child,
the word made flesh, born in a forgotten place.

You called us by name, to leave what was comfortable,
to be your disciples, companions and friends.

You saved us by kneeling at our feet,
stretching your arms wide to take away our sins,
walking through death to life again.

And still you meet, call and save us:
we praise you.

January

2-8 January Biblefresh

Biblefresh is a Christian initiative encouraging the church to 'gain appetite, confidence and passion for the Word' inspired by this year's 400th anniversary of the publishing of the King James Bible. Pray that the Bible will be valued afresh in our land, that it will be a book that impacts all our lives.

www.biblefresh.com

9-15 January Mainstream

Mainstream is a Word and Spirit network linking, encouraging and resourcing leaders and churches within and beyond the Baptist denomination to be passionate about God, real in relationships and committed and effective in mission. Pray that God's Spirit will refresh and inspire all who attend the annual Mainstream conference this week, strengthening them for their ministry.

www.mainstream-uk.com

16-22 January Week of Prayer for Christian Unity

This year's Week of Prayer for Christian Unity is focusing on Christians in the Middle East, particularly in Jerusalem. Pray that churches of all denominations will seek Christian unity, justice and peace in the Holy Land and around the world. Pray for good relations between churches here in the UK, both locally and nationally.

www.ctbi.org.uk/511

23-29 January Heart of England Baptist Association

Pray for John Lowe (Researcher) assembling reports on HEBA's area to facilitate mission development/ church planting and for Gale Richards as she settles into her role as Project Worker/ NBLC Regional Tutor. Pray for the HEBA training initiative 'Learning at the Centre' with BMS and three Baptist colleges beginning this Spring with modules in pastoral care and mission.

30 Jan-5 Feb Poverty and Homelessness Action Week

This week Christians are being encouraged to pray, fundraise and act to help tackle poverty and homelessness in communities throughout the UK. Pray that churches will feature the topic in their services on Homelessness Sunday (30 January) or Poverty Action Sunday (6 February) and that Christians will use the special prayer calendar (www.actionweek.org.uk/html/calendar.html) during the week.

27 February-5 March South Wales Baptist Association

Pray for the association team, particularly Regional Ministers Nick Bradshaw and Andy Hughes, as they seek to serve, support and resource existing churches across South Wales in their mission and ministries. Pray also for SWBA as they explore opportunities for church planting and engaging in fresh expressions of church in South Wales.

March

6-12 March Baptist Men's Movement (BMM)

The Baptist Men's Movement is holding One Small Step - its annual Bigger Weekend conference - in Market Bosworth. Pray for incoming BMM President Dean Thorpe and the leadership team as they seek to help churches bring men to Christ and cultivate friendship and fellowship among men. Pray too for The Bigger Breakfast in September.

www.baptistmen.org.uk/

13-19 March Communications Department

Pray for the team as they work on a range of communications, media, publications, Home Mission promotion and the Baptist Assembly. Please pray for the development of the new BUGB website being launched this Spring, that it will create a sense of family and the changes will benefit those visiting the site for resources and information.

www.baptist.org.uk/communications

20-26 March Baptist Union Council

The Baptist Union Council meets this week at Swanwick, Derbyshire. Pray for the Council as it discusses a range of issues from mission to finance and make decisions that will affect the life of the Union. Pray for those reporting to Council and all those working behind the scenes to make the meeting go smoothly.

jointpublicissteam
Joint Public Issues Team of the Baptist Union of Great Britain

27 March-2 April Joint Public Issues Team

The Baptist Union of Great Britain works on social and political issues with the Methodist and United Reformed churches through the Joint Public Issues Team (JPIT).
